

Lloyd D. Miller
1901 to 1968

Helen M. Miller
1902 to 1992

Relationship to St. Andrew: Lloyd and Helen were Charter Members of the St. Andrew Evangelical United Brethren Church when it was formed in 1954. Lloyd had been Lay Leader of the congregation. The basement of their home was used for Sunday School classes for many years.

Family: Lloyd and Helen were married in 1922 at Leipsic, IN. They had three daughters, Mary Francis Novak, Patricia Ann Koeppen and Elizabeth Hohanna Bailey, and one son Robert Lloyd Miller. They had fifteen grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren.

Recognition: Lloyd was a pioneer in the field of Audio-Visual Instruction as this became an important component of teaching in the Nations schools. Helen, a homemaker was a leader in SAUMC and the community.

Memorials: Three dogwood trees were planted in memory of the Millers. Additional funds were donated to the sound system project.

Lay Leader Lloyd Miller

In a 1987 letter Florence Yund describes Mr. Miller's contribution to the naming of St. Andrew.

"I think often of the time we decided that we needed a name. One evening we met to make this decision. We had been asked to be ready to suggest names and this we did, until Lloyd Miller suggested the name, St. Andrew. Then he proceeded to interpret to us the significance of the name for our new church. "Andrew", he said, "was the disciple who brought others to Christ." He suggested that bringing others to Christ should be, and we intended to make it, the main purpose of our new church. This appealed to each one present and the name was decided upon without a dissenting vote."

Prof. Miller Succumbs Of Heart Attack

Prof. Lloyd Dean Miller, 67, of 314 Meridian St., West Lafayette, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Purdue Student Health Center at 2:50 p.m. Saturday. He was stricken with an apparent heart attack while working in his yard.

Prof. Miller joined the Purdue staff in the war training program in 1942, was appointed supervisor of visual aids in the division of technical extensions in 1945 and was appointed film librarian in the audio-visual center in 1952.

In 1954, he was named an assistant professor in addition to his position as film librarian and in 1960 was appointed assistant director of the audio-visual center and associate professor.

Before coming to Purdue, he was a high school teacher, principal and superintendent in a number of Indiana schools and was critic teacher in science in the University School at Indiana University in 1938-41.

He had been vice president and president of the Audio-visual Instruction Directors of Indiana and in 1967 received AVID's merit award for "outstanding contributions to education throughout the development of audio-visual instruction in Indiana."

At the same time, a national organization, the Division of Audio-visual Instruction, for which he had served on a number of committees, presented him its pioneer award.

Last December he was made an honorary member of the Purdue Reamer Club.

Born and reared near Leesburg, he received the A.B. degree in 1923 from Indiana Central College, majoring in English and science, and received the master's degree in education from Indiana University in 1937.

He did additional work toward the Ph.D. degree at I.U. from 1937 to 1941.

In 1922 at Leipsic he was married to Helen M. Foutch, who survives.

He was a charter member of St. Andrew's United Methodist Church, of which he was conference lay delegate. He also was past board member and past treasurer of the board. He was a member of the National Educational Association, and Audio-Visual Instructor Division of the State of Indiana.

Surviving with the widow are three daughters, Mrs. Arthur Novak of Baton Rouge, La., Mrs. Charles Koeppen of West Lafayette, and Mrs. Milton Bailey of Columbia, Mo.; one son, the Rev. Robert L. Miller of Geneva; one sister, Mrs. Howard B. Gray of Vicksburg, Miss.; two stepbrothers, Don O. Taylor of Detroit, Mich., and Harold H.
